

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A battery comprises a battery body comprising a positive electrode and a negative electrode each containing an active material, a separator holding an electrolyte, and an adhesive resin layer joining at least one of the positive and the negative electrodes to the separator, wherein the adhesive resin layer comprises at least one layer and particles of a filler. The filler particles in the adhesive resin layer render the layer porous which provide passages through the resin layer through which ions pass.